

John's Prologue (1:1–18)

Bethany Bible Church, Adult Sunday School Class
Pastor Greg Stiekes

The first words of John's gospel, "In the beginning," forge a link with the beginning of the entire Bible. Compare the opening chapters of Genesis with the prologue in John, noting the parallels and similarities:

John 1:1–18	Genesis 1—3
1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. 2 He was in the beginning with God. 3 All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made. 4 In Him was life, and the life was the light of men. 5 And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it. 6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. 7 This man came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all through him might believe. 8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. 9 That was the true Light which gives light to every man coming into the world. 10 He was in the world, and the world was made through Him, and the world did not know Him. 11 He came to His own, and His own did not receive Him. 12 But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, to those who believe in His name: 13 who were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. 14 And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. 15 John bore witness of Him and cried out, saying, "This was He of whom I said, 'He who comes after me is preferred before me, for He was before me.'" 16 And of His fullness we have all received, and grace for grace. 17 For the law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. 18 No one has seen God at any time. The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him.

When John writes, “In the beginning,” his readers familiar with Gen 1:1 expect the next word to be “God.” But instead, John supplies, “the Word.” As the prologue unfolds, the reader discovers that the “Word” is none other than Jesus Christ, the subject of John’s gospel. In other words, John begins by putting Jesus Christ both historically and theologically in his proper place: Jesus is the eternal God. Historically, he was there at the beginning. In fact, John will go on to say that the world was made by him (v. 3). Theologically, since he was there at the beginning he existed before the beginning. When the beginning came, Jesus already was. Jesus will tell the multitudes in John 8:58, “Before Abraham was, I am.”

However, the traditional understanding that John 1:1–2 affirms the deity of Christ is sometimes challenged today. Therefore, we will take some time to understand the debate about this passage and to carefully explain the meaning of the text in its context.

The Deity of Christ in John 1:1–2

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. (KJV)

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was a god.* This one was in the beginning with God. (NWT) *Or, “was divine.”

Translation and Literal Rendering of the Greek Text

Ἐν ἀρχῇ ἦν ὁ λόγος, καὶ ὁ λόγος ἦν πρὸς τὸν θεόν, καὶ θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος.
En arché én ho logos, kai ho logos én pros ton theon kai theos én ho logos.
In beginning was the word and the word was with the god and god was the word.

οὗτος ἦν ἐν ἀρχῇ πρὸς τὸν θεόν.
houtos én en arché pros ton theon.
same was in beginning with the god

The phrase “and the Word was God” affirms the deity of Christ because of several contexts in which this statement is made:

Historical Context: Would John, a strict monotheist, really suggest more than one “God”?

Literary Context (rest of the Gospel): Jesus’ deity is affirmed in 5:18, 23; 8:58; 10:30–31; 20:28.

Grammatical Context: The grammatical structure of the Greek phrase in question is most naturally translated “the Word was God,” because “word” has the article, making it the subject. Second, in the Greek pattern “noun = the noun,” the first noun is rarely indefinite—something a Greek reader would not naturally expect. So the absence of the article (“the”) on “God,” is best interpreted as expressing quality: “The Word had the quality of Deity.” In other words, he was the same in essence as God.
